Yesterday, before passing out the snacks, the kids and I prayed. Most of them prayed for their parents to find jobs or a new home. I'll leave it to God to answer those prayers but one prayer I heard I knew God could answer before the week was up. "Jesus, please send us some hotdogs and pop. Amen." Ronnie prayed.

"Those are some great prayers, kids. Keep on asking God for help because he'll always come through." I preached to the kids as I passed out the popsickle snacks.

The next day I told Daddy that I wanted to throw a cookout for the Kensington kids. Of course being the action kind of guy Dad is, we immediatly jumped in the Chrysler and headed for Kroger, our local grocery store.

He filled up the buggy with hotdogs, buns, chips, drinks, cookies and charcole. This was going to be fun. I couldn't wait to see Ronnie's face when he saw that God had provided and answered his food prayer.

When Mama and I got to Kensington, I threw the coals on the grill, lit the match and started to roast the dogs. I forgot to get the tongs so I had to push the hotdogs around with a pencil but I'm still the best grill master the kids had ever seen.

The smoke rose and the delicious smell of cooking meat filled the air. I saw the bus stop and the kids jump off and race up the hill towards me.

"WOW! This is awesome, Ashley. Where did all this food come from?" The kids ask.

"This food was provided by all the church people that are praying for you and your families." I tell them.

I hand the first hot dog to Ronnie. "Thanks a lot, Ash. Tell God thanks, too." He says and takes a big bite into his answered prayer.

We must have feed at least 50 kids that day and it's all because of your continued support.

Thank you for providing the funds so that we can answer these kids prayers. I can't do it without your gernorisy. Summer teams are here! Pray for the new believers.

Love, Ashley
